U.S. STEEL TO END PLUS PLAN OF PRICE BASIS

Formal Statement Made Industry Will Abolish the "Pittsburgh Plus" System

COMMISSION CHARGES

Alleged System of Basing Price on Pittsburgh Production Was Wrong

Washington, Sept. 18.—The United States Steel corporation and other concerns affected have notified the federal trade commission that they will conform, "insofar as it is practicable to do so," to the commission's order directing abandonment of the Pittsburgh plus system of establishing prices in the industry.

The decision was made public late yesterday by the commission, the respondents having determined to conform "without admitting the validity of said order or the jurisdiction of the commission to make the same."

Held Plan Unfair

The commission's order was dated July 21, after a long series of hearings and arguments which marked the case as one of the most bitter the federal agency has considered. The order held that the Pittsburgh plus system, by which the corporation and its subsidiaries quoted prices from all plants, regardless of location, at the Pittsburgh base price plus freight charges from that city to destination, was an unfair method of competition in violation of the federal trade commission act and a means of price discrimination in violation of the Clayton act.

The commission further held that the system lessened or eliminated competition, retarded business in all steel centers except Pittsburgh, and added greatly to the cost of steel products, amounting to $35,000,000 a year in 11 western states. It was said the order, similar in effect to the old "steel pools," "Gary dinners," and other methods regarded as price fixing systems contrary to public interest and not in accord with the law of supply and demand.

Many Hearings Held
The proceeding was originated by the commission and hearings were held at practically all producing points, with attorneys for 32 associated middle western states and steel consumers later joining in the fight to have the system abandoned.

The respondents, in the report made public yesterday and dated Tuesday announced that they "have abandoned the Pittsburgh plus system, as defined in said order, throughout their various organizations and will not hereafter make use of the same," and asserted further:

"Respondents will not quote for sale or sell their rolled steel products upon any other basing point than that where the products are manufactured or from which they are shipped.

"Sales from manufacturing plants, fabricating plants and warehouses will be made f. o. b. plants or warehouse, or at delivered prices, as occasion may offer. In all cases of sales at delivered prices, the contract of sale, or the invoice will clearly and distinctly indicate how much is charged for the steel products sold f. o. b., the producing, or shipping point, and how much is charged for the actual transportation of such products, if any, from such producing or shipping point to destination.

"All f. o. b. selling prices, whether at the mills, warehouses or fabricating plants, and all delivered prices will be non discriminatory within the meaning of the second section of the Clayton act, but will be subject to the variations permitted by said act."

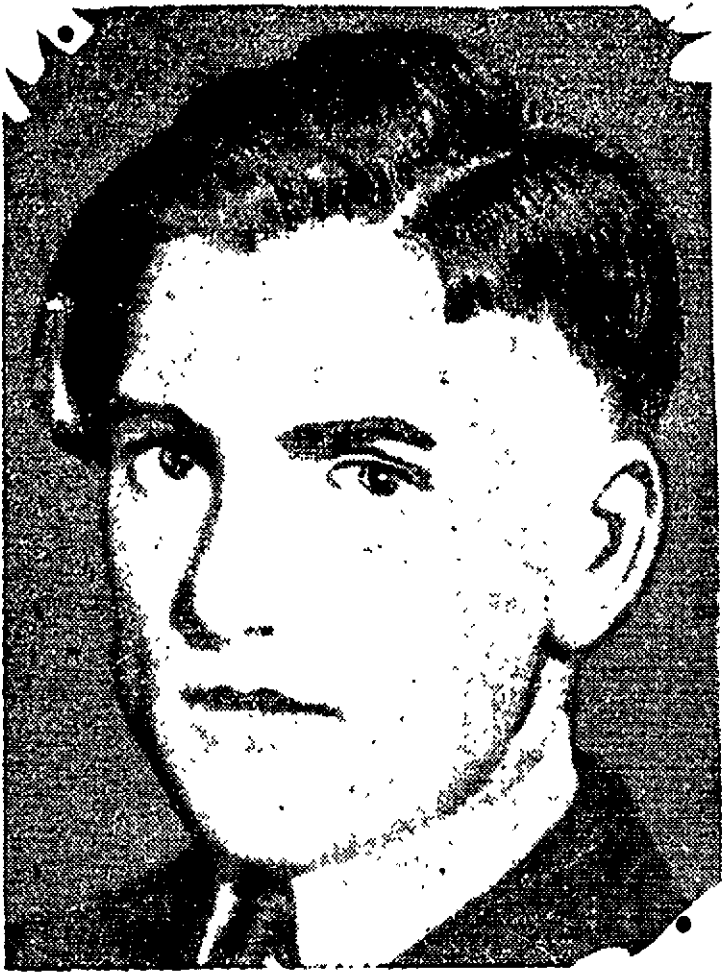

WOMAN, 72, WEDS MAN OF 29

Portsmouth, Va., Sept. 18.—A marriage license was issued yesterday to Jack Edward Griffith, 29, to wed Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Fray, 72. Another Murderer Advances Age as Plea in Avoiding the Hangman's Noose in Illinois

By NEA Service

Chicago, Sept. 18.—"In choosing imprisonment instead of death, the court is moved chiefly by the consideration of the age of the defendants, boys of 18 and 19 years."

"The court believes it is within its province to decline to impose the sentence of death on persons who are not of full age.

"This determination appears to be in accordance with the progress of criminal law all over the world and with the dictates of enlightened humanity. More than that, it seems to be in accordance with precedents hitherto observed in this state."

"The records of Illinois show only two cases of minors who were put to death by legal process to which number the court does not feel inclined to make an addition."

"Life imprisonment may not, at the moment, strike the public imagination as forcibly as would death by hanging, but to the offenders, the prolonged suffering of years of confinement may well be the severer form of retribution and expiation."

So ruled Chief Justice John R. Caverly of Cook county criminal court in passing sentence upon Nathan F. Leopold Jr., and Richard A. Loeb, sons of millionaires.

They had pleaded guilty to the murder of 14-year-old Bobby Franks. But they were too young to hang! So, at least, thought the court.

LAFOLLETTE TO NEW YORK

Senator to Face Audience in Madison Square Garden

Washington, Sept. 18.—Senator LaFollette, independent candidate for president, timed his departure for New York to address a Madison Square Garden rally tonight so that he would reach his destination just before the meeting. On his arrival in New York he planned to take a brief rest before going to the audience.

The speech Senator LaFollette will deliver is the first to be delivered by him to an audience since he became a presidential candidate. It was prepared with care and it was indicated it would take an hour or more to deliver.

He expected further developments over night.

Formal withdrawal from the Republican ticket of four electoral candidates known favorable to Senator Robert M. LaFollette for the presidency, was being impatiently awaited today in local political circles. Although statements had been made which caused Coolidge adherents to believe that the situation would be cleared several days ago, there was no change this morning. Roy Frazier of Crosby, who was to obtain the resignation of the four LaFollette electors, as understood in political circles, was not in the city today. On Monday he predicted the situation would be cleared the next day, stating he had the resignation of one and that the resignations of the other three LaFollette electors were being mailed to him.

Jud LaMoure of Pembina, who is representing Harrison Garnett, Republican national committee, remained in the city this morning, but had no statement to make. Reports that the LaFollette forces were making certain demands on the Republican forces as a reward for withdrawing the LaFollette electors from the Coolidge ticket brought no statement on this subject from interested parties.

Both the Nonpartisan League and LaFollette campaigns in North Dakota appear to be "well oiled" at the outset, and several employees and officers of the organizations are busily engaged in building up campaign organizations. A force of stenographers has been busy for several days, both in the LaFollette and Nonpartisan League headquarters, sending out campaign material.

The Nonpartisans will open their western state campaign Sunday, with a picnic at Pelton's grove, near Dunn center. A. G. Sorlie, League candidate for Governor, is advertised to speak, with T. H. H. Thoresen, candidate for Attorney-General, and others.

SOME ASSERT CHICKENS FEW

Several Parties of Hunters Fail to Find 'em

Are the prairie chickens plentiful? Well, there's some argument on this point. The hunters that have gone out and brought back the limit say they are, but the hunters who didn't have such good luck are certain that they are scarce.

The majority of reports are, however, that the prairie chickens are not to be found in many accustomed haunts. One hunter declared they were plentiful east of the Missouri, but scarce west of the Missouri, saying that hail, rain and cold weather combined to keep down the 1924 crop by destroying eggs and small chickens. One hunter said he had run into a great many small chickens, explaining this by saying the first hatching had failed to live and the small chickens were from a second hatching.

Three or four groups of hunters, however, have come in with the full limit of chickens and said they could have got more.

The state game and fish commissioner insists that there is a good crop of prairie chickens. Ducks seem to be plentiful.

Convention Would Have U. S. Ships on Parity With Others in Gun Range

St. Paul, Sept. 18.—Passage of necessary legislation to restore General John J. Pershing to the active list "in order that his valuable counsel will be available to those responsible for the defense of the nation" was urged in a resolution adopted by the American Legion national convention here today.

The convention also adopted the report of the naval affairs committee which urged that "our battle fleet be placed immediately on an absolute parity of the strongest navy of the world in the matter of power and range of its guns."

A recommendation for making "Defense Day" an annual event, set for September 12, was contained in the military affairs committee report adopted by the convention. Legionnaires were urged to continue "their splendid cooperation" to make the day successful.

Continuance of the activity of the Legion toward supporting the citizens military training camp and the reserve officers corps was pledged by the military affairs committee report, which also urged an increase in pay of privates to $30 a month.

Another resolution adopted recommended the adjusted compensation act be changed to permit any veteran to assign his insurance benefits to any patriotic organization chartered by Congress. The American Legion is one of the two such organizations.

URGE VET BUREAU CHANGES

St. Paul, Sept. 18.—Changes in the personnel of the Veterans Bureau planning board and the central board of appeals are demanded in a resolution criticizing those boards, adopted by the American Legion national convention here today.

While declaring improvement has been shown under the present bureau director, the resolution charges that he is being improperly advised by the department attaches, and necessary changes to remedy this alleged situation are demanded. Demand for an early trial of Col. R. Forbest, under indictment for alleged irregularities in connection with his administration as director of the United States Veterans Bureau, was contained in another resolution.

POOLE HIRED TO EXAMINE CITY FINANCES

Taxpayers Seek to Make Constructive Suggestions on Cutting of City Budget

Several taxpayers of Bismarck seeking to give the people accurate data relative to the finances of Bismarck with a view to offering constructive suggestions to the city commission in formulating the next budget have employed Thomas Poole, local certified accountant, to make an analysis of public expenditures. Vouchers will be examined and a financial statement prepared showing in detail just where the money is being spent, who is getting it and where, if possible, retrenchments can be made without serious impairment of public service.

Mr. Poole expects to begin his investigation of city finances tomorrow. The results of these examinations after they have been gone over by taxpayers of Bismarck will be made public as a guide both to the people of Bismarck and their representatives on the city commission.

It has also been suggested by the taxpayers that the city auditor prepare a complete statement of the city's finances for early publication.

Knowing that he could not squeeze through the small opening in his natural state, the prisoner used the vaseline freely and a few minutes later slipped to freedom.

Candidates for Governor and Attorney-General Appear in Grand Forks

CAMPAIGN IS DISCUSSED

Views of North Dakota Mill and Elevator Are Given By Candidate

CONTINUES CAMPAIGN

Grand Forks, Sept. 18.—Halvor L. Halvorson, fusion candidate for Governor of North Dakota, who with Attorney-General George Shafer spoke here Wednesday night, on the issues of the campaign, left for Coopersburg, where he will speak this evening.

Grand Forks, N. D., Sept. 18.—Pledge of the united efforts which will be put forth by Real Republicans and Democrats in the coming campaign against a renewal of Nonpartisan league domination in North Dakota was given here last night by Halvor Halvorson, fusion candidate for governor, and Attorney General George Shafer, fusion candidate for re-election, both of whom spoke before a splendid audience at the Grand Forks city hall.

Mr. Halvorson in his address denounced the radical program of Senator LaFollette which would reduce the supreme court to the status of a legislative committee and declared himself strongly opposed to the extension of the present system of state owned industries which is demanded in the Nonpartisan league platform. He also gave a detailed analysis of the problems confronting the state mill and elevator, and declared for a farther trial of that enterprise with a provision that the cessation of the experiment should be submitted to a popular vote in the event that it continues to show losses.

Shafer Commends Halvorson
In a brief but enthusiastic address Attorney General Shafer, who followed Mr. Halvorson, commended the latter's candidacy to the voters. "I commend Mr. Halvorson's candidacy to all citizens who wish to see sound, sane government prevail in North Dakota during the next two years," said Mr. Shafer. "I support Mr. Halvorson in two capacities. First, because as a citizen of the state, my duty to the state is above my duty to any political party. Second, because, as a Republican, I have no other choice consistent with loyalty to the principles of the Republican party."

"With the defeat of R. A. Nestos in the June primary the Republicans of North Dakota lost their only chance to support a Republican for governor. True, a candidate is running on the ballot under the Republican label but he is making his campaign on a platform of socialism which is repugnant to all the principles for which the Republican party stands. Since obtaining the Republican nomination this candidate has not only refused to support the Republican presidential candidate but has (Continued on page 2)

Governor Will Appear With Dawes in S. D.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Sept. 18.—The attitude of Governor W. H. McMaster of South Dakota, Republican nominee for the United States senate, toward the national Republican ticket appeared to be settled definitely with the announcement that Governor McMaster will attend and speak briefly at the Republican rally here Friday night at which Charles G. Dawes, Republican candidate for vice-president, will make the principal address.

Governor McMaster's acceptance of an urgent invitation from the state Republican organization to attend the Dawes rally was interpreted by Republican leaders as signifying that the governor would support the national party ticket during his campaign for the senate, and it was hailed by Republican ranks which have persisted since the primary campaign, when McMaster was committed to the candidacy of Senator W. M. Johnson of California, for the Republican presidential nomination.

COLLAPSE IMMINENT

Shanghai, China, Sept. 18 (11:40 p. m. By the A. P.)—Collapse of the Chekiang forces defending Shanghai from the Kiangsu army of Tsuchi Kihich-Wang, tonight was believed imminent.

No danger to the foreign settlements here was expected tonight, but in anticipation of the breaking down of the Chekiang defense of the city with a resultant influx of refugees, every foreign defense unit was being mobilized, while especially heavy guards were placed at all approaches.

Pfk Loh, secretary to Ho Feng Ling, military governor of Shanghai and an appointee of General Lu, tonight finally admitted after rumors consistently unfavorable to the Chekiang cause had been given credence, that through "treachery and bribery" a revolt had been effected in the third army, practically amounting to a declaration of independence.

Shanghai, China, Sept. 18.—(By the A. P.)—The Chekiang third army, assigned to guard that province against invasion while the first and second armies fought off the Kiangsu army attacking Shanghai, has revolted, Chekiang headquarters admitted tonight.

As a result of the revolt, Lu Wung Hsiang Tsuchi of Chekiang province and Commander-in-chief of the Shanghai forces has fled from his provincial capital, Hangchow, it was admitted, and is expected in Shanghai tonight.

Rolling stock on the Shanghai-Hangchow railway, it was rumored, all was moved off toward Shanghai when the troops evacuated the city. How far the Kiangsu soldiers had advanced on the "western" front was not stated. In the meantime, Kiangsu started a new offensive against Luoh, key position on the Yangtze estuary, 30 miles northwest of Shanghai.

News that the new Luoh attack had started, together with the consistent character of the unconfirmed rumors, raised to a point of general alarm the already tense nerves of the international settlement. The Shanghai volunteer corps, a foreign organization, was ordered mobilized at 10 o'clock.

In addition, the municipal council tonight officially ordered the whole-sale arrest of all suspected dangerous characters in the settlement. The order was issued after refugees began entering the settlement by the hundreds seeking protection under the flags of the powers.

U. S. STEEL TO END PLUS PLAN OF PRICE BASIS

COMMISSION CHARGES

Alleged System of Basing
Price on Pittsburgh Production Was Wrong

Washington, Sept. 18.—The United States Steel corporation and other concerns affected have notified the federal trade commission that they will conform, "insofar as it is practicable to do so" to the commission's order directing abandonment of the Pittsburgh plus system of establishing prices in the industry.

The decision was made public late yesterday by the commission, the respondents having determined to conform "without admitting the validity of said order or the jurisdiction of the commission to make the same."

The response was signed by the United States Steel corporation, American Bridge company, American Sheet and Tin Plate company, Carnegie Steel company, National Tube company, American Steel and Wire company, Illinois Steel company, Minnesota Steel company, and Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company.

Held Plan Unfair

The commission's order was dated July 21, after a long series of hearings and arguments which marked the case as one of the most bitter in the history of the federal government. The order held that the Pittsburgh plus system, by which the corporation and its subsidiaries quoted prices from all plants, regardless of location, at the Pittsburgh base price plus freight charges from that city to destination, was an unfair method of competition in violation of the federal trade commission act and a means of price discrimination in violation of the Clayton act.

The commission further held that the system lessened or eliminated competition, retarded business in steel centers except Pittsburgh, and added greatly to the cost of steel products, amounting to $35,000,000 a year in 11 western states. It was said the order, similar in effect to the old "steel pools," "Gary dinners," and other methods regarded as price fixing systems contrary to public interest and not in accord with the law of supply and demand.

Many Hearings Held

The proceeding was originated by the commission and hearings were held at various points, with attorneys for 32 associated middle western states and steel consumers later joining in the fight to have the system abandoned.

The respondents, in the report made public yesterday and dated Tuesday, announced that they "have abandoned the Pittsburgh plus system, as defined in said order, throughout their various organizations and will not hereafter make use of the same," and asserted further:

"Respondents will not quote for sale or sell their rolled steel products upon any other basis than that where the products are manufactured or from which they are shipped.

"Sales from manufacturing plants, fabricating plants and warehouses will be made f. o. b. plants or warehouse, or at delivered prices, as occasion may offer. In all cases of sales at delivered prices, the contract of sale, or the invoice will clearly and distinctly indicate how much is charged for the steel products sold f. o. b., the producing, or shipping point, and how much is charged for the actual transportation of such products, if any, from such producing or shipping point to destination.

"All f. o. b. selling prices, whether at the mills, warehouses or fabricating plants, and all delivered prices will be non-discriminatory within the meaning of the second section of the Clayton act, but will be subject to the variations permitted by said act."

Chicago, Sept. 18.—In choosing imprisonment instead of death, the court is moved chiefly by the consideration of the age of the defendants, boys of 18 and 19 years.

"The court believes it is with-

"This determination appears to be in accordance with the

POOLE HIRED TO EXAMINE CITY FINANCES

Taxpayers Seek to Make Constructive Suggestions on Cutting of City Budget

Several taxpayers of Bismarck seeking to give the people accurate data relative to the finances of Bismarck with a view to offering constructive suggestions to the city commission in formulating the next budget have employed Thomas Poole, local certified accountant, to make an analysis of public expenditures.

Analysts will be examined and a financial statement prepared showing in detail just where the money is being spent, who is getting it and where, if possible, retrenchments can be made without serious impairment of public service.

Mr. Poole expects to begin his investigation of city finances tomorrow.

The results of these examinations after they have been gone over by taxpayers of Bismarck will be made public as a guide both to the people of Bismarck and their representatives on the city commission.

It has also been suggested by the taxpayers that the city auditor prepare a complete statement of the city's finances for early publication.

GREASES SELF, SLIDES OUT OF JAIL TO SAFETY

Oil City, Pa., Sept. 18.—Laverne Eisenman, who slid from Clarion county jail to freedom several days ago by greasing his body with vaseline and dropping through a small passage, was back in his cell today.
Eisenman, charged with burglary, picked the lock to his cell and made his way to the upper tier where the small alleyway leads to the outside.
Knowing that he could not squeeze through the small opening in his natural state, the prisoner used the vaseline freely and a few minutes later slipped to freedom.

HALVORSON AND SHAHER SPEAK FOR COALITION

Candidates for Governor and Attorney-General Appear in Grand Forks

CAMPAIGN IS DISCUSSED

Views of North Dakota Mill and Elevator Are Given By Candidate

CONTINUES CAMPAIGN

Grand Forks, Sept. 18.—Halvorson, L. Halvorson, fusion candidate for Governor of North Dakota, who with Attorney-General George Shafer spoke here Wednesday night, on the issues of the campaign, left for Cooperstown, where he will speak this evening.

Grand Forks, N. D., Sept. 18.— Pledge of the united efforts which will be put forth by Real Republicans and Democrats in the coming campaign against a renewal of Non-partisan league domination in North Dakota was given here last night by Halvorson, fusion candidate for governor, and Attorney-General George Shafer, fusion candidate for re-election, both of whom spoke before a splendid audience at the Grand Forks city hall.

Mr. Halvorson in his address denounced the radical program of Senator LaFollette which would "reduce the supreme court to the status of a legislative committee" and declared himself strongly opposed to the extension of the present system of state owned industries which is demanded in the Nonpartisan league platform. He also gave a detailed analysis of the problems confronting the state mill and elevator, and declared for a further trial of that enterprise with a provision that the cessation of the experiment should be submitted to a popular vote by the event that it continues to show losses.

Shafer Commends Halvorson

In a brief but enthusiastic address
Attorney-General Shafer, who followed Mr. Halvorson, commended the latter's candid and forthright Republican as well as Democratic
"I commend Mr. Halvorson's candidacy to all citizens who wish to see sound, sane government prevail in North Dakota during the next two years," said Mr. Shafer. "I support
Mr. Halvorson in two capacities.
First, because as a citizen of this state, my duty to the state is above
my duty to any political party. Second, because, as a Republican, I have no other choice consistent with loyalty to the principles of the Republican party."

"With the defeat of R. A. Nestos in the June primary the Republicans of North Dakota lost their only chance to support a Republican for governor.
True, a candidate is running on the ballot under the Republican label but he is making his campaign on a platform of socialism which is repugnant to all the principles for which the Republican party stands. Then since obtaining the Republican nomination this candidate has not only refused to support the Republican presidential candidate but has

"Weather Superstitions"

Common at This Time of Year Don't Receive Much Weight From Experts of Weather Bureau — Equi-noctial Storm Is Declared a Myth

This is the season for an outburst of "weather superstitions."

With the point of full moon passed safely, many citizens believe that a killing frost won't visit this part of the state for perhaps two or three weeks, which would be of inestimable value to corn growers. However, the weather bureau doesn't see it that way. The average date of a killing frost here is September 16,
and anything may happen after that date, according to O. W. Roberts, weather observer.

The equinoctial storm is another of the "weather superstitions," in the opinion of the experts, whose business it is to study the weather. The autumnal equinox—that is, the time when the sun's center is crossing the equator, coincides with either of the equinoctial points—will come September 21 or 22, and it will be officially ushered in. There may or may not be a storm then, according to weather bureau officials, but if there is it is not because of the sun's action.

Unsettled was the forecast today,
with possibility of a light storm, or unsettled weather and rain, tonight or tomorrow. The Indian summer season, however, ought to be with us now.

What Bureau Says

Regarding the "weather superstitions," O. W. Roberts, weather observer, said today:

"Among the various 'weather superstitions' one of the most common is the belief in equinoctial storms, if they occur with three or four days of the time of occurrence of the vernal or autumnal equinox, this is usually considered a verification of the equinoctial theory. When one takes into consideration the fact that during September of each year
there is an average of six rainy days, there should be, and generally is, a storm on or about September 21-22, just as there is usually one about Sept. 7-8th. In fact there are more than twice as many storms during the period Sept. 6-11th as during the period Sept. 22-27th, or during Sept.
28-29th. One reason for this belief is that rains occurring late in September are noticed more closely because of the lower temperature under which they are produced. In fact the first cold rains occur late in September, due to the fact that temperatures near the freezing point are unusual until after September 16th (the average date of first killing frost). The dates of most frequent precipitation during the month of September are between the 6th and 11th. During October the average number of days with precipitation is less than in September."

"It, therefore, stands to reason that during the last days of September and during the first half of October we should, and do generally, experience a season of mild temperature with absence of precipitation which we commonly call 'Indian Summer.'"

M'MASTERS TO JOIN RALLY

Governor Will Appear With Dawes in S. D.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Sept. 18.—The attitude of Governor W. H. McMaster of South Dakota, a Republican nominee for the United States senate, toward the national Republican ticket appeared to be settled definitely with the announcement that Governor McMaster will attend and speak briefly at the Republican rally here Friday night at which Charles C. Dawes, Republican candidate for vice-president, will make the principal address.

Governor McMaster's acceptance of an urgent invitation from the state Republican organization to attend the Dawes rally was interpreted by Republican leaders as signififying that the governor would support the national party ticket during his campaign for the senate, and it was hailed by Republican ranks which has persisted since the primary campaign, when McMaster was committed to the candidacy of Senator William Johnson of California, for the Republican presidential nomination.

COLLAPSE IMMINENT

Shanghai, China, Sept. 18
(11:40 p. m. By the A. P.)—
Collapse of the Chekiang forces defending Shanghai from the Kiangsu army of Tsuchi Kih-chuan, tonight was believed imminent.

No danger to the foreign settlements here was expected tonight, but in anticipation of the breaking down of the Chekiang defense of the city with a resultant influx of refugees, every foreign defense unit was being mobilized, while especially heavy guards were placed at all approaches.

Pk Loh, secretary to Ho Feng
Ling, military governor of Shanghai and an appointee of General Lu, tonight finally admitted after rumors consistently unfavorable to the Chekiang cause had been given credence, that through "treachery and betrayal" a revolt had been effected in the third army, practically amounting to a declaration of independence.

Shanghai, China, Sept. 18.—(By the
A. P.)—The Chekiang third army, assigned to guard that province against invasion while the first and second armies fought off the Kiangsu army attacking Shanghai, has revolted.
Chekiang headquarters admitted tonight.

As a result of the revolt, Lu
Wung-hsiang, Tsuchi of Chekiang province, Commander-in-chief of the Shanghai forces, has fled from his provincial capital, Hangchow, it was admitted, and is expected in Shanghai tonight.

Rolling stock on the Shanghai-Hangchow railway, it was rumored,
all was moved off toward Shanghai
when the troops evacuated the city.
How far the Kiangsu soldiers had advanced on the "western" front was not stated. In the meantime, Kiang-su started a new offensive against Liuhoo, key position on the Yangtze estuary, 30 miles northwest of Shanghai.

News that the new Liuhoo attack had started, together with the consistent character of the unconformable rumors, raised to a point of general alarm the already tense nerves of the international settlement. The Shanghai volunteer corps, a foreign organization, was ordered mobilized at 10 o'clock.

In addition, the municipal council
tonight officially ordered the wholesale arrest of all suspected dangerous characters in the settlement. The order was issued after refugees began entering the settlement by the hundreds seeking protection under the flags of the powers.

BARRY ATTACKS CUSTER STORY BY 'SURVIVOR'

Famous Photographer of Indians Takes Issue With Frank Fleck's Story

TELLS OF THE FIGHT

D. E. Barry, photographer and author of a book on the life of the early West, takes issue with Frank Fleck, who in 1910 published a book of the battle of the Little Big Horn, in which General Custer and his command were massacred by Indians, who in an article appearing in the Lincoln Daily, where he gave a picture of the battle, says the "survivor" of the battle.

Facts Are Twisted
"From his twisted and warped facts, Fleck was never in the battle," stated Mr. Barry. "The article states that Fleck enlisted in the regular army in 1867, going from the regular army to the Seventh U. S. Cavalry. In 1875, he was one of the cavalry detail that captured the Indian chief, Rain-in-the-Face, and placed him in prison at Fort Lincoln, Nebraska. The chief afterwards escaped and was one of General Custer's bitterest enemies."

"The Seventh Cavalry was stationed in the northwest and waged continuous warfare upon the Sioux under Chief Sitting Bull. Before the battle of the Little Big Horn, where Custer and his men met death at the hands of the Sioux, Custer divided his forces into two parts, one commanded by himself and the other under Colonel Reno."

Last Entire Command
"He had planned to strike the Indians from two sides and demoralize them, but instead he suffered the loss of his entire command and Reno and his men narrowly escaped annihilation before the engagement. Custer detailed 90 men to guard the supplies and with this detail Fleck was stationed."

"We were separated from the other men but a short time," said Fleck, "when we saw that they were being surrounded by the Sioux. There was no commissioned officer in our detail, but we immediately determined to follow the trail of Reno's command. We just lost the trail and came out 30 or 40 rods to the left of the position occupied by Reno's men."

Faced Deadly Fire
"We had just reached the top of a bluff when a band of savages seemed to rise out of the ground but 50 feet distant and poured a deadly fire into our detail. We were completely overwhelmed and in a short time every man in the detail except myself and a trooper named Frank Knapp of Milwaukee had been killed."

"Knapp was shot through the hip and I had four bullet wounds and an arrow wound. One bullet passed through my left wrist and the same ball or another pierced my shoulder. Another bullet entered my right leg and a fourth my right side. Both of our horses were shot from under us, and in falling my mount rolled on my legs and pinned me to the ground. I lay for four days with that dead horse on my legs before some of Reno's men got me and carried me off the field."

Knapp Is Killed
"Knapp was shot on the third day when he peered over the carcass of Fleck's dead horse and on the fourth day the Indians withdrew fearing reinforcements. Fleck further stated, Reno's men then picked up Fleck and withdrew from the field. In withdrawing from the field, Fleck states he passed over the scene of Custer's last stand and saw the mangled and mutilated bodies of the brave general and his men, and that Custer's body was so mutilated that it was scarcely recognizable," Mr. Barry continues.

Article Is Amusing
"Fleck's article amuses me," Mr. Barry states in reply. "First, Sitting Bull was not a chief, he was a Sioux medicine man. Second, Rain-in-the-Face did not hate General Custer. General Custer and Mr. Custer were kind to him, when he was a prisoner in the guard house at Fort A. Lincoln, North Dakota. Third, he don't say where they captured Rain-in-the-Face, although he claims to have taken part in that."

"He says General Custer divided his regiment into two commands. The regiment was divided into four commands. General Custer commanded five companies, Major Reno in command of three companies, then, Benton in command of three companies and Captain John M. Douglass, commanding one company and the pack train."

Body Not Mutilated
"Reno and Benton left the Reno Hill, on the twenty-seventh, when General Terry came up and proceeded to the field where General Custer and his command fell. General Custer's body was not mutilated at all."

"Fleck states he is 60 years old now. The Custer fight took place 48 years ago last June. From his statement he must have been 12 or 13 years of age at that time. No children took part in that fight with General Custer. Fleck tells about his friend Knapp, who lived in Milwaukee. There was no person killed in the Custer fight by the name of Knapp."

COLLEGE MEN SHOULD TRAVEL OVERALL ROUTE

Youthful Technicians Should Start in the Shops Before Going to Swivel Chairs

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 17.—The idea that young college graduates expect to step forth, diplomats in hand, and conquer the world, or at least become masters of industry or finance within a few months time, is being dispelled by the Carnegie Institute of Technology, John T. Morris, director of the College of Industries, declared recently.

Even the college graduate should get his "white collar job" by traveling the "overall route," Mr. Morris believes, and various branches of industry are cooperating to the extent of hiring the youthful technicians, putting them into a pair of overalls and sending them into the dirt and grease of the shops before they are permitted to take a hand in the problems of management in the clean atmosphere of swivel chairs and glass covered desks. Industrial heads also are providing special equipment and suggesting curriculum improvements.

Steps to incorporate a more practical system of industrial education in the College of Industries were taken several years ago, but it has been only in the past few years that any great interest in the development of the new system had taken their first job, however, executives in big plants began to take notice and a report from the institute said the willingness of these graduates to don denim and soil their hands in the shops had aroused much interest in the plan. The report declared that before the last commencement nearly every potential graduate received from three to ten offers of jobs upon graduation.

Professor C. C. Leeds, head of the Department of Machinery Production in the College of Industries, explained the psychology of the system in a recent address before the Vocational Councilors of Pittsburgh.

"By putting on a suit of overalls and beginning the climb in the works," said Professor Leeds, "the young man gains a knowledge of many things. He learns the value of discipline, he comes to know and appreciate his fellow workman and his point of view; and further, he has a wonderful opportunity to become thoroughly familiar with the production methods of the company."

Hunting Party Spilled When Train Hits Car

Aberdeen, S. D., Sept. 17.—Vern Neer, 26, manager of the Farmers Elevator at Crandall, south of here was probably fatally injured yesterday afternoon when the car in which he and three others were riding was struck by a freight train on the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad about a mile from Crandall. Mr. Neer suffered a broken left wrist and serious internal injuries.

Three others were in the car and all were injured. Donald Neer, son of Vern, suffered a compound fracture of the left ankle besides cuts and bruises; James Hernon, conductor of the car, received a fractured hip and Tom Scamlin, hanker of Bradley, suffered a fractured lower jaw.

The party was just starting on an afternoon hunting trip when the accident occurred.

BRIGHT SHOW COMING HERE

"Little Jessie James" Is Declared One of Season's Best

One of the greatest successes on Broadway for years was scored last season by "Little Jessie James" the "peppy" musical comedy produced by L. Lawrence Weber, who had a New York run that lasted a solid year. It is to be offered at the Auditorium on Thursday evening, September 25 and will doubtless prove one of the most popular attractions of the local season. Although called a musical comedy "Little Jessie James" is quite a different sort of affair from what that term usually signifies. Written by Harlan Thompson who supplies hook and lyrics and Harry Archer who composed the music, "Little Jessie James" is frankly a fast moving, rib-tickling farce while the tunes are nearly all, unblushingly "jazzy". In fact there is only one number in the whole score that is not, that being a ballad called "I Love You" and a real hit it is.

The character from which this musician concoction takes its name, is a corn fed young damsel, hailing from Okmucosa Kansas, wherever that is, who has come on to New York to show Broadwayites, how to have a good time.

During her stay, she manages to get into several scrapes, but like her famous namesake, she is able to get out of them although some of her escapades are of the hairbreadth variety. Although the title might lead to the belief, that the happenings take place in the far west, this is not the case the action being entirely confined to the big city across the river from New Jersey.

Stress is laid upon the Paul White-man band carried on tour by the company.

What Chrysler Engineers Are doing for Maxwell

The engineering group who share credit for the sweeping success of the good Maxwell, have high reputations to maintain.

It is therefore deeply significant that they would now rest their claim for recognition in automotive engineering squarely upon the good Maxwell.

You will realize how much that statement means when you remember that these men designed the Chrysler Six.

It is this same group which has, in the good Maxwell, reduced vibration literally to the vanishing point—an accomplishment heretofore thought impossible in four-cylinder practice.

It is this same group which has built into the good Maxwell, performance worthy of a car three times its price.

You really cannot appreciate good Maxwell performance without riding in the car. All we can say here is that it accelerates smoothly and swiftly—from 5 to 25 miles an hour in 8 seconds flat; that it is a truly great car through the mountains; and that it pulls its way through sand and mud that stops far costlier cars.

If you examine into the basic reasons for such performance, and for Maxwell's economical, care-free service, you discover things like these:

That both the new transmission and new rear axle are strong and rugged enough for a truck.

That the extensive use of fine bearings eliminates friction to such an extent that with one hand you can roll the car on a level floor or street.

That the heavy, perfectly balanced crankshaft floats on a film of oil maintained under force-feed pressure in its oversize bearings—thus reducing wear to the point where there is practically no need for bearing replacement.

That the release or throwout bearing of the new clutch—often a prolific cause of trouble and expense because of poor lubrication—is positively and automatically lubricated from the transmission.

That at all vital points the good Maxwell uses the same kinds of alloy and heat-treated steels employed in the costliest cars.

That in proportion to weight, it is actually stronger than cars costing two, three or even four times as much.

That the rear axle drive pinion, which bears the brunt of propelling the car, is rigidly mounted on bearings which preserve permanent alignment and quiet.

That the frame, in addition to its unusual depth of six inches is braced by six stout cross members.

Such superiority in material, in construction, in engineering design, is bringing new thousands to the conviction that the Maxwell is not only a good car, but that it is actually better than anything at anywhere near its price.

Road Building Far Behind the Automobile

Millions now recognize the automobile as a necessity. It is no longer a luxury for the few. Sixty per cent of its use is for business.

Because of this the modern paved highway has become an economic necessity.

Yet although the mileage of Concrete Roads and Streets has been steadily increasing, our highway system today lags far behind the automobile. The great majority of our highways are as out of date as the single-track, narrow gauge railway of fifty years ago.

Such a condition not only seriously handicaps the progress of the automobile as a comfortable, profitable means of transportation, but also holds back commercial, industrial and agricultural advancement in practically every section of the country. It is costing taxpayers millions of dollars annually.

Highway building should be continued and enlarged upon.

Your highway authorities are ready to carry on their share of this great public work. But they must have your support. Tell them you are ready to invest in more and wider Concrete Highways now.

LEGION, LABOR PROGRAM SAME AVERS SPEAKER

Major Berry, Head of International Pressman's Union, Speaks

FOR BETTER AMERICA

St. Paul, Sept. 18.—The American Federation of Labor and the American Legion are bound in common bond in a fight "to make for America one hundred percent intelligence, intellect and an unadulterated affection and love for country," George L. Berry, delegate from Tennessee, former national vice-commander of the American Legion and president of the International Pressman's Union, said in addressing the Legion's convention today.

Speaking for organized labor and its president, Samuel Gompers, Mr. Berry declared the aspirations of the two institutions, insofar as their specific jurisdictions extend, are identical and that "it was good that in the life of this country there has come into existence an organization such as The Legion, interested in legislation for human development and economic fairness."

"The International Trades Unions that make up The American Federation of Labor are both economic and legislative in character," Mr. Berry asserted.

Federation American

"The American Federation of Labor is American in its every purpose and sentiment. I venture the observation that no organization of men and women would respond in resentment at anything that is in contrast to our American ideals and purposes any quicker than would the American Federation of Labor. It stands against sovietism and communism; both of which are Un-American and founded upon theories destructive to the well being of our citizenship.

"The American Federation of Labor joins with the American Legion in that great legislative program which seeks to eliminate illiteracy from America. The Federation and the Legion could not be consistent, with the broad humanitarian program based upon practical experience, to hesitate in their support and allegiance to the proposition of eradicating illiteracy. Consequently, it is good to be able to point to the records of the Legion and the Federation of Labor in their determination to find the cause and to apply the remedy to illiteracy.

"They have concluded that there are two principal reasons for its existence in America. First, the exploitation and use of children in the factories, the shops, the mines and the farms—the commercializing of child life. The remedy proposed by these two great American institutions is identical. Second, as a further remedy these two institutions have said that immigration has played its part, and I believe that their conclusion is correct. They, as a consequence, have jointly urged upon the government the enactment of an immigration law that will be both practical, just and responsive to the requirements of our nation."

The Federation of Labor has unanimously endorsed the legislative program of the Legion in toto, Mr. Berry said, and in doing so "there was brought to the Legion's cause the greatest single numerical and legislative force within the confines of the nation."

Answer To Legion

"Labor's answer to the Legion, when inquiries and requests for support were sought, has been 'tell us what you desire and we shall endeavor to take with you and all other forward looking citizens of our country to secure it for you.' This answer has been given without pressure. This has come without the necessity of educating labor as to the accuracy and justice of the Legion's cause. It has come because of the knowledge of two things. First, that the Legion has so adjusted itself as to always be right and, second, labor has felt it an obligation to thus act as a manifestation of gratitude to those responsible for the ending of the World War and the honorable representations made in that conflict in the interest of our republic."

In opening his address last night Mr. Halvorson spoke of the McNary-Haugen bill and declared his conviction that it would be enacted into law at the next session of congress. He then arranged Senator LaFollette's effort to overthrow the foundation of the constitution of the United States by depriving the courts of their power. "When we consider the mistakes LaFollette has made, I think it is pretty evident that it isn't safe to let him write a new constitution for us," the speaker declared.

The mess made by the Nonpartisan league administration of the North Dakota Home Builders association, and other state industries was touched on by Mr. Halvorson who pointed out that with such a record behind it, the league was scarcely in a position to demand the expansion of the state industrial program under league guidance, which is one of the points in its platform.

State Mill Discussed

In discussing the state mill situation Mr. Halvorson pointed to the heavy losses which have been incurred by that enterprise owing to the economic disadvantages which any mill of that size located in North Dakota must face. But at the same time pointed out that the enterprise might be an important factor in raising the price of wheat for the North Dakota producers. In this connection he said:

"There is, however, another side of the question. The mill grinds North Dakota hard wheat, of which there is a very limited supply, and may thus be a factor in affecting the price of this wheat. There are two reasons for this: First, the amount of hard wheat used by the mill makes the market short that much, and it is the last bushel which fixes the price of a commodity.

"Second, the North Dakota state mill manufactures and offers to the country a flour which admittedly has more value in it than the flour offered by eastern millers who use 90 percent of softer wheat. So when the bakers of the east test flour for its real value the millers of the east are compelled to increase the percentage of northern grown wheat in their flour to meet the competition of this mill, so again the demand for North Dakota wheat is increased.

Thus the state mill and elevator may be a factor in setting the price of our state wheat crop. When you think of this in connection with the premiums of from 15 to 20 cents per bushel which have been paid for North Dakota wheat during the last two years you begin to vision the possibility of the benefit which may accrue to North Dakota wheat farmers indirectly through its operation even although the books of the institution do not show a direct profit."

MANDAN NEWS

TO OPEN TEMPLE

The first of a series of social events to be held under the auspices of the Masonic lodges of the city will take place at the Masonic hall next Wednesday evening, Sept. 24, when teachers of the public schools of the city will be entertained at a dancing party. Numerous other events including a Halloween party, novelty events, card parties, old time dancing party, etc., will be announced later. The plans include a great homecoming party in the new Masonic temple about New Year's. S. E. Arthur is chairman of the entertainment committee named recently members of which include Wm. Furness, Jr., C. A. Benson, E. H. Tostevin, H. B. Parsons, E. Miller, F. W. McHenry and J. A. Timmerman.

Announcement was made to members at the meeting recently that bids would be opened Thursday night calling for the completion of the basement floor of the new temple by New Year's. Approximately $12,000 will be expended in installing the plumbing, heating system (to be connected with central city heating plant) and completely finishing the basement floor as it will be when the temple is completed. A temporary roof will be put over the building so far completed.

SUFFERED STROKE

George Breedlove, aged colored handyman about town who says he was born in slavery and remembers well the coming of the soldiers at the time of the civil war, is a patient at the Mandan Deaconess hospital following a stroke of paralysis suffered Monday. His condition is reported favorable.

VAN HORN-GEHRING

Rev. C. E. Van Horn, former pastor of the Mandan Methodist church, yesterday officiated at the marriage of his own daughter, Miss Ruth to Robert C. Gehring of Mandan. The wedding will be of interest to a large number of friends of the newlyweds as well as many members of the Van Horn family.

The ceremony occurred at the Van Horn home in Des Lacs, N. D., with only intimate friends present. Following the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Gehring left by automobile for Elgin, Iowa, former home of the groom where they will spend a few weeks honeymoon before returning to Mandan to make their home.

Miss Van Horn, the eldest daughter of Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Van Horn, formerly of Mandan, completed her graduate nurses training course in the Mandan Deaconess hospital recently and returned to the home of her parents. She has many friends in the city.

Mr. Gehring came to Mandan about three years ago, assumed an interest in the Purita Dairy company, ice cream manufacturing concern, and is secretary of the company.

THE BATTLE OF ANTIETAM

destructive to the well being of our citizenship.

"The American Federation of Labor joins with the American Legion in that great legislative program which seeks to eliminate illiteracy from America. The Federation and the Legion could not be consistent, with the broad humanitarian program based upon practical experience, to hesitate in their support and allegiance to the proposition of eradicating illiteracy. Consequently, it is good to be able to point to the records of the Legion and the Federation of Labor in their determination to find the cause and to apply the remedy to illiteracy.

"They have concluded that there are two principal reasons for its existence in America. First, the exploitation and use of children in the factories, the shops, the mines and the farms—the commercializing of child life. The remedy proposed by these two great American institutions is identical. Second, as a further remedy these two institutions have said that immigration has played its part, and I believe that their conclusion is correct. They, as a consequence, have jointly urged upon the government the enactment of an immigration law that will be both practical, just and responsive to the requirements of our nation."

The Federation of Labor has unanimously endorsed the legislative program of the Legion in toto, Mr. Berry said, and in doing so "there was brought to the Legion's cause the greatest single numerical and legislative force within the confines of the nation."

Answer To Legion

In opening his address last night Mr. Halvorson spoke of the McNary-Haugen bill and declared his conviction that it would be enacted into law at the next session of congress. He then arranged Senator LaFollette's effort to overthrow the foundation of the constitution of the United States by depriving the courts of their power. "When we consider the mistakes LaFollette has made, I think it is pretty evident that it isn't safe to let him write a new constitution for us," the speaker declared.

The mess made by the Nonpartisan league administration of the North Dakota Home Builders association, and other state industries was touched on by Mr. Halvorson who pointed out that with such a record behind it, the league was scarcely in a position to demand the expansion of the state industrial program under league guidance, which is one of the points in its platform.

State Mill Discussed

In discussing the state mill situation Mr. Halvorson pointed to the heavy losses which have been incurred by that enterprise owing to the economic disadvantages which any mill of that size located in North Dakota must face. But at the same time pointed out that the enterprise might be an important factor in raising the price of wheat for the North Dakota producers. In this connection he said:

"There is, however, another side of the question. The mill grinds North Dakota hard wheat, of which there is a very limited supply, and may thus be a factor in affecting the price of this wheat. There are two reasons for this: First, the amount of hard wheat used by the mill makes the market short that much, and it is the last bushel which fixes the price of a commodity.

KEEP I. W. W. OFF STREETS

Protest Made by Wobblies at Minot Action

Minot, N. D., Sept. 19.—Redress of grievances alleged to have been suffered at the hands of the Minot police was asked of the city commission, meeting in weekly session by H. C. Locke, purporting to represent the I. W. W. organization, who asserted that one of the society's organizers has been arrested on four different occasions within the past few weeks on charges of vagrancy. Locke presented to the city commission a petition which he said had been adopted at an I. W. W. meeting in Minot on Sunday, which was referred to Police Commissioner F. Otto Gross for investigation. The petition requested the commission to "take such measures as are necessary to prevent the police from any further interference with our stationary delegates at this point."

"I think it is perfectly right that the police should nab every I. W. W. organizer who goes out and 'buttholes' prospective members on the street," declared the police commissioner.

City Attorney R. H. Bosard said that he had told a local attorney, representing an I. W. W. client, who had been arrested for vagrancy, that in event an organizer wished to open up an office and not solicit members on the street, the authorities would not molest them.

TALK CHANGE IN GAME LAWS AS SEASON OPENS

Jameson, N. D., Sept. 18.—Everybody that was able to get into the fields Tuesday, the opening day of the hunting season, enjoyed the outing and the fine day but the game that was really sought, chickens, was very limited. This is not however, blamed to the scarcity of prairie chickens but to inability to get them up. The full grown chickens and grouse are in small coveys and the late hatched chickens are still small and hug the grass and stubble to even being walked over. Several instances are given of hunters spotting down a covey and then failing to raise them. Ducks were plentiful and large bars of them were made where hunted. The ducks are large and well fed. Farmers in several instances said that they have destroyed much grain in the shocks.

The hunting more than ever stirred up the issue of a change in the hunting laws such as allowing the use of dogs and a limited bag for chickens and grouse from Sept. 16 to Oct. 15 and delaying the opening of the duck season to Oct. 15th. This, it is said would stop the slaughter of ducks and allow of a fine sport in chicken hunting while still giving plenty of protection to the game to warrant save preparations.

LEGION, LABOR PROGRAM SAME AVERS SPEAKER

Major Berry, Head of International Pressman's Union, Speaks FOR BETTER AMERICA

St. Paul, Sept. 18.—The American Federation of Labor and the American Legion are bound in common bond in a fight "to make for America one hundred percent intelligence, intellect and an unadulterated affection and love for country," George L. Berry, delegate from Tennessee, former national vice commander of the American Legion and president of the International Pressman's Union, said in addressing the Legion's convention today.

Speaking for organized labor and its president, Samuel Gompers, Mr. Berry declared the aspirations of the two institutions, insofar as their specific jurisdictions extend, are identical and that "it was good that in the life of this country there has come into existence an organization such as the Legion, interested in legislation for human development and economic fairness."

"The International Trades Union, that make up the American Federation of Labor are both economic and legislative in character," Mr. Berry asserted.

Federation American "The American Federation of Labor is American in its every purpose and sentiment. It ventures the observation that no organization of men and women would respond in resentment at anything that is in contradiction to our American ideals and purposes any quicker than would the American Federation of Labor. It stands against sovietism and communism; both of which are Un-American and founded upon theories

If Uncle Sam Owned the Railroads ?

The LaFollette platform calls for government ownership of railroads. The LaFollette campaign is to be conducted with special appeal to the farmer vote, especially the farmer vote of the Northwest states.

"There arises the question: Do the farmers wish the government to own and operate the railroads?" A very illuminating editorial on the subject of government ownership of railroads in its bearing on taxes appears in the August 30 number of "The Country Gentleman."

Government-owned railroads and railroad property, like federal buildings, would be exempt from taxation by states, counties or municipalities. On this phase of the subject the editorial referred to comments in parts as follows:

"That would mean a loss of $8,425,892 tax revenue for Minnesota; $7,321,976 for Wisconsin; $6,849,703 for Iowa; $6,739,346 for Kansas; $5,367,969 for Nebraska; $4,679,693 for Montana, and $4,072,282 for North Dakota.

These losses, which would have to be made up by increased taxes on other forms of property, are equivalent to $32 for every farm, or $280 for every man, woman and child in Iowa.

To $40 for every farm or $3.90 for every person in Minnesota. To $52.40 for every farm or $6.30 for every person in North Dakota. And to $81.25 for every farm or $8.60 for every person living in Montana.

These figures in every case are based on official records. The bulk of more than $300,000,000 annually distributed by the railroads in taxes goes to the states and counties—$248,605,094 out of $300,452,723 in 1922, and a still larger amount last year.

It is pointed out that drying up railroad taxes would have a particularly adverse effect on the agricultural states, notably those of the Northwest.

"On the basis of the 1923 collection," says the treasurer of Rosebud county, Montana, "the loss of railroad taxes would increase the levy on remaining property 56 per cent, thereby becoming an unbearable burden on the taxpayer."

For a dozen North Dakota counties, chosen at random, abolition of railroad taxes would increase general tax levies from 8.88 per cent to 23.47 per cent.

THE BATTLE OF ANTIETAM

destructive to the well being of our citizenship. "The American Federation of Labor joins with The American Legion in that great legislative program which seeks to eliminate illiteracy from America. The Federation and the Legion could not be consistent, with the broad humanitarian program based upon practical experience, to hesitate in their support and allegiance to the proposition of eradicating illiteracy. Consequently, it is good to be able to point to the records of the Legion and the Federation of Labor in their determination to find the cause and to apply the remedy to illiteracy.

"They have concluded that there are two principal reasons for its existence in America. First, the exploitation and use of children in the factories, the shops, the mines and the farms—the commercializing of child life. The remedy proposed by these two great American institutions is identical. Second, as a further remedy these two institutions have said that immigration has played its part, and I believe that their conclusion is correct. They, as a consequence, have jointly urged upon the government the enactment of an immigration law that will be both practical, just and responsive to the requirements of our nation."

The Federation of Labor has unanimously endorsed the legislative program of the Legion in toto, Mr. Berry said, and in doing so "there was brought to the Legion's cause the greatest single numerical and legislative force within the confines of the nation."

Finally come out openly in support of the bitterest enemy the Republican party has. If there is anything more he can do to forfeit the support of Republicans, I don't know what it is."

In opening his address last night Mr. Halvorson spoke of the McNary-Houston bill and declared his conviction that it will be enacted into law at the next session of congress. He then arraigned Senator LaFollette's effort to overthrow the foundation of the constitution of the United States by depriving the courts of their power. "When we consider the mistakes LaFollette has made, I think it is pretty evident that it isn't safe to let him write a new constitution for us," the speaker declared.

The mess made by the Nonpartisan league administration of the North Dakota Home Builders' association, and other state industries was touched on by Mr. Halvorson who pointed out that with such a record behind it, the league was scarcely in a position to demand the expansion of the state industrial program under league guidance, which is one of the points in its platform.

State Mill Discussed In discussing the state mill situation Mr. Halvorson pointed to the heavy losses which have been incurred by that enterprise owing to the economic disadvantages which any mill of that size located in North Dakota must face. But at the same time pointed out that the enterprise might be an important factor in raising the price of wheat for the North Dakota producers. In this connection he said:

"There is, however, another side of the question. The mill grinds North Dakota hard wheat, of which there is a very limited supply, and may thus be a factor in affecting the price of this wheat. There are two reasons for this: First, the amount of hard wheat used by the mill makes the market short that much, and it is the last bushel which fixes the price of a commodity.

"Second, the North Dakota state mill manufactures and offers to the country a flour which admittedly has more value in it than the flour offered by eastern millers who use no percent of domestic wheat. So when the bakers of the east test flour for its real value the millers

Minot, N. D., Sept. 18.—Redress of grievances alleged to have been suffered at the hands of the Minot police was asked of the city commission, meeting in weekly session by H. C. Locke, purporting to represent the I. W. W. organization, who asserted that one of the society's organizers has been arrested on four different occasions within the past few weeks on charges of vagrancy.

Locke presented to the city commission a petition which he said had been adopted at an I. W. W. meeting at Minot on Sunday, which was referred to Police Commissioner F. Otto Gross for investigation. The petition requested the commission to "take such measures as are necessary to prevent the police from any further interference with our stationary delegates at this point."

"I think it is perfectly right that the police should nab every I. W. W. organizer who goes out and 'buttonholes' prospective members on the street," declared the police commissioner.

City Attorney R. H. Bosard said that he had told a local attorney, representing an I. W. W. client, who had been arrested for vagrancy, that in event an organizer wished to open up an office and not solicit members on the street, the authorities would not molest them.

TALK CHANGE IN GAME LAWS AS SEASON OPENS

Jameson, N. D., Sept. 18.—Everybody that was able to get into the fields Tuesday, the opening day of the hunting season, enjoyed the outing and the fine day but the game that was really sought, chickens, was very limited. This is not however, blamed to the scarcity of prairie chickens but to inability to get them up. The full grown chickens and grouse are in small coveys

and the late hatched chickens are still small and hug the grass and stubble to even being walked over. Several instances are given of hunters spotting down a covey and then failing to raise them. Ducks were plentiful and large bags of them were made where hunted. The ducks are large and wheat fed. Farmers in several instances said that they have destroyed much grain in the shocks.

The hunting more than ever stirred up the issue of a change in the hunting laws such as, allowing the use of dogs and a limited bag for chickens and grouse from Sept. 16 to Oct. 15 and delaying the opening of the duck season to Oct. 15th. This, it is said would stop the slaughter of ducks and allow of a fine sport in chicken hunting while still giving plenty of protection to the game to warrant save preparations.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

STATE AGENCY NEEDED

The capture of part of a gang of bandits in South Dakota and their confession of their long and widespread activities emphasizes the problem of combating crime in these days of rapid transportation. A thief may rob, steal an automobile and be far away before his crime is discovered. The South Dakota bandit gang operated widely, both in North and South Dakota, making long trips in a short time in high-powered cars which they stole. Many stores have been robbed and thousands of dollars worth of goods carted away quickly in automobiles.

The problem of fighting organized banditry in North Dakota has grown to be more than a local problem. Effective work has been done in the organization of vigilance committees, for protection. There has been a decrease in banditry since many towns organized for protection. Not many bandits want to walk into a nest of armed marksmen nor attack well protected strongholds. In the detection of criminals, however, the local committees are handicapped.

Proposal for the establishment of a state force would meet much objection. The necessity for a large, organized force is questionable. The most recent disclosures of bandit activities does, however, emphasize the necessity of a central authority with adequate funds and power to make long and wide searches if bandit gangs are to be broken up.

A CORRECTION

Inadvertently it was stated last evening that four teachers were employed at the Will school to teach seventh and eighth grades. The William Moore school was intended. Those seeking seventh and eighth grade facilities at the Roosevelt have suggested that two of these teachers be transferred to the Roosevelt to teach the seventh and eighth grades which would then give such facilities to the Roosevelt, the William Moore and the Richholt as against the board's plan to concentrate seventh and eighth grades at the Will making children from east and west ends of the city walk excessive distances to school.

DANGEROUS

Airplanes at some of the ocean beaches have been flying low over the bathers to throw a scare into them. One woman was severely injured, struck by an anchor or some other object dangling from a rope attached to the plane. It starts us thinking, what a dangerous device the airplane will be in the hands of fools. Autos are bad enough.

When airplanes swarm overhead by the thousands, the garbage and clutter that will shower on our heads will be a fright, unless planes are barred from flying over communities. They could be restricted to "air lanes" or roads, flying traffic cops keeping them there.

FLOWERS

Two flowers, together in a vase, wilt sooner than when kept separately. Flowers like privacy. They express displeasure. They have moods—emotions. Some loathe music wither and droop near an orchestra. So claims a botanist writing in London Daily Mail. He refers to the more delicate, sensitive blossoms.

Anyone who has studied plant-life is apt to believe that it even has intelligence. If it's ever found that plant-life experiences pain, cutting a field of wheat will ethically be on a par with slaughtering beasts. Referred to Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Plant-life.

Many are worried by the trend of our nation's foreign trade. In July we bought more from other countries than we sold them. Imports exceeded exports by less than $80,000—not much, but it may be the turn of the tide, with the trade balance increasingly against us as time goes by.

On the other hand, the only way we can back the loans to Europe is to take payment in goods—import more than we export. That'll make less work for Americans with our markets glutted by foreign wares. An industrial readjustment would become necessary to keep skilled and unskilled labor busy.

ALOFT

Thoret, French aviator, remained soaring in the air over nine hours in a glider, drifting around like a sea gull. He had a motor and propeller aboard for emergency, but they were sealed and not used during the gliding.

These little gliders, operated on the principle of a kite, may become "the craze" within a few years. Properly handled, a glider is about as safe as playing football. You'll own a flying machine of some sort before many years.

STAINLESS

The stainless rust-proof steel invented by Ronald Wilds of Sheffield, England, is being tested in Pittsburgh. A cheap steel of this sort would save America alone hundreds of millions of dollars a year that now is lost by rust.

A very dull steel industry, chronically dull, would result. It's the wearing out of things that keeps industry busy. Nearly all human work is for the purpose of replacing the wornout.

DANCING

Dancing is more a matter of the soul than of the feet, claims a speaker at the convention of dance teachers. Many will actually agree with him.

It's difficult to associate dancing with the spiritual. The appeal of the dance is entirely emotional. Is the soul emotional or intellectual?

A dog show held in New York recently was a very snappy affair.

The scientific name for laziness is ergophobia, but even this won't scare the lazy people.

THE SERIOUS PURPOSE OF THE PRINCE'S VISIT

(Chicago Journal of Commerce)

The visit of the Prince of Wales to the United States is a serious matter. The prince did not come here because he wanted to. He had no desire to be stared at, rushed around, fawned upon, and have his time stolen from him by people who worried him to death. What he wanted was liberty, and time for a little run. His choice of Will Rogers for a companion is an indication of his actual tastes.

But what the prince wants and what the prince gets are widely different things. The prince is not his own man. He is England's man. Until he becomes England's king, he is to be England's ambassador at large to the world. The world has taken to the prince for a number of reasons: partly because he is good-looking and apparently unspoiled, and partly because there is a legend abroad that he is enjoying himself; for the world loves a man who seems to be having a good time.

And then there is the pre-eminent reason: snobishness. The people between the covers of New York's Social Register are now fighting one another with tooth and claw for the privilege of meeting the prince. And these people are simply representative of the entire country. Great crowds of the plain, simple, democratic countrymen get up a cheer for the prince when he landed; another great crowd awaited him when he reached Washington.

Snobishness is an almost universal emotion, and there are none more snobbish than those who continually rail at it. The British foreign office knows that the British royal family represents the topmost aspiration of all the snobishness in the world.

The love of ceremony born in the heart of everyone has helped to fix the eyes of the world upon the English court and to make its exclusive circles a world-wide goal," writes Miss Jane Grant in the Saturday Evening Post. "But more important, probably, is the psychological need for some final tribunal for society. Whatever the reasons, the English court is, socially, the world court, and it is the supreme court, its decisions carrying with it acceptance by the great, and personal deferences and attentions without limit."

And elsewhere Miss Grant declares, "Not a civilized woman alive, be she of either hemisphere, would forego the privilege and experience of curtsying to their majesties."

That statement may be too sweeping, but it's pretty nearly true. The British foreign office knows that Britain accordingly sends the English court around the world to receive the world's curtsies.

The Prince of Wales is the English court on tour. He draws well in Australia and India and Canada, and thereby strengthens the ties of the mother country with her daughters.

At present the prince is in the United States for a limited engagement. He will stay more than a month. It may be fun for his audience, but it's work for him. If his train should stop at Potomac at 2 a. m., the cheering of the simple, democratic village folk would cost him his night's sleep.

But duty calls. He is in America because the British foreign office intelligently believes that the American people will like England better if its royal heir apparent drops into pass the time of day.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

One day Mrs. Woodchuck came waddling into Nancy, Nick & Company's store and asked if Mister Snip Snap, the fairyman, was there. "Yes, madam," said Nick politely. "Please sit down and I'll call him."

So Mrs. Woodchuck sat down, but she kept tapping her foot on the floor, and that showed that she must be pretty much upset about something.

"How do you do, Mrs. Woodchuck," said Mister Snip Snap, coming from the back of the store where he had been making a pair of pink pajamas for Mister Ringtail Coon. "Well, I don't do as you do," said Mrs. Woodchuck crossly. "I don't sell people things that shrink."

"Why, Mrs. Woodchuck," said Mister Snip Snap. "I never did such a thing in my life. I wouldn't do such a thing. You can ask Mrs. Frog and Mrs. Turtle. They ought to know, for their children are always in the water."

"I don't care," said Mrs. Woodchuck. "Wally's new suit has shrunk so that it won't button on him at all. The buttons are about two inches away from the buttonholes."

"That's very queer," said Nancy. "because it did him just fine the day you bought it."

"Well, we like our customers to be satisfied," said Mister Snip Snap, "so bring it back, Mrs. Woodchuck, by all means. And if it is tight as you say, I shall be glad to give you a brand-new suit for Wally."

This put Mrs. Woodchuck into a better humor. "That's ever so kind of you, Mister Snip Snap," she beamed. "And I'm much obliged, I'm sure."

Wally put his suit on, and lo and behold, it fitted like a boxing glove.

There'll Be One Grand Smashup if Someone Isn't Careful

Buttoned right up under his chin as smart as you please.

"For pity's sake!" gasped poor Mrs. Woodchuck.

It was all she could say after making such a fuss 'n' all about nothing.

"It seems to be just the right size," said Mister Snip Snap soberly.

"I think it looks wonderful," agreed Nancy.

"If you would get a suit any larger than that it wouldn't fit him at all," said Nick.

"I'm very sorry, I'm sure," said Mrs. Woodchuck. "But Wally himself can tell you that after he'd had supper at his grandma's last night it wouldn't button up at all. You must be using magic, Mister Snip Snap, to make it fit so well again."

"No magic at all, Mrs. Woodchuck," said the fairyman. "By the way, Wally, what did you have for supper?"

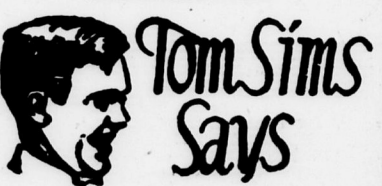

"Six slices of bread and apple sauce," said Wally, "and six potatoes and four ears of corn and 12 pancakes with molasses and two dumplings and—"

"Mrs. Woodchuck," said Mister Snip Snap, "the wonder is that your child is alive at all. If he goes to his grandma's often, you'll have to buy him an extra suit about four sizes too large to wear at those times."

"I think you are right," sighed Mrs. Woodchuck. "I never knew Wally was such a little pig."

LETTER FROM SALLY AHTERTON TO BEATRICE GRIMSHAW SUMMERS

DEAR BEE:

I was so glad to get your letter and know that you are so happy in your new home. Of course you would be happy during your honeymoon. I remember that glorious first few months with Sam, after our marriage, and I never expect to experience such delicious happiness.

At first, to come home from the office and hurry to get some kind of a pickup dinner was a joy, especially as Sam was always hanging around the kitchen making love to me and clumsily trying to help. But after a little I found my poor physical machinery rebelled at the overhours it was made to work. It did not take into any consideration that the extra time was given to a labor of love. Labor was labor to it, and nothing else.

More and more often I got the dinner in paper bags and receptacles was made to work. It did not take home. More and more often I neglected even to remove the contents of these paper bags to some of my dainty china. More and more often we ate a catch-as-catch-can dinner from these same paper bags, until Sam rebelled at having to get his ham and potato salad and other time-honored dainties of the hurried housewife from the corner grocery.

Then we tried going out for our dinners, but after reaching home we found usually we were too tired to do this. In a little while I was eating my paper bag dinner in solitary state and usually adding to it the salt of my tears, while Sam, on a plea of business, stayed down town until eight o'clock or after, and he usually came home with a liquor-laden breath.

Of course this will never happen to you, Bee, ensconced in your beautiful hilltop home with nothing to do except engage in the delightful time of spending five thousand dollars for beautiful things to make your home more beautiful.

Yes, I know, dear Bee, what I have just written sounds envious and petty, but you know I always was envious, and frequently envious.

I want you to know, however, that I would not take from you one of your blessings. You deserve everything good that can be given to you, and I would have you keep them all your life. I'm just trying to tell you that in whatever environment one is placed, after a time it looks to me as though the secret orchard of somebody else which lies just beyond always intrigues one's fancy. That secret orchard usually bears gnarled and bitter fruit, but while we are outside of it, the peaches and apples and pears seem luscious.

Like all the rest of the people outside of Hollywood, I am intensely interested in its life, and I am glad I shall know it now from first hand. Some day I may be coming out there for a vacation. You know I have always been more or less of a gypsy, and the California trail has always beckoned.

You ask me to tell you about Leslie. I know really nothing, except that she is staying at her father's home where he is, as you know, quite ill. He is getting better, however.

I am sure that Mr. Prescott and Leslie have had some sort of a quarrel, for no letters have come to the office for Mr. Prescott with her handwriting upon them since she has been away. During the last week, however, he received a telegram from Mrs. Hamilton telling him his father-in-law wanted to see him, and to come and bring the baby.

Mr. Prescott, with the silly stubbornness of a small boy, insists he could not leave his business, but I noticed after receiving a long letter

ONE FORM OF MADNESS

By Albert Apple

A "boy robber," arrested, says he staged a score of hold-ups and robberies to get material for magazine stories he intended to write. His idea was to watch the reactions of human nature confronted by a pistol, then work his observations into fiction.

Unless this lad is kidding the police, he is in earnest. In which event, he appears to have a form of the malady known as graphomania.

Graphomania is a definite and recognized form of insanity. The victim has "the urge to write," just as the kleptomaniac has "the urge to steal."

Unfortunately, the graphomaniac usually turns out nothing but drivel. Still more sadly, he occasionally finds a market for it. In your reading you've encountered some terribly punk stuff, which strikes the fancy of lunatics holding editors' jobs.

Magazines get fiction manuscript by the freight carload. The writing business is extremely overcrowded. Despite this competition, there's always a shortage of "the right stuff." Most of the flood of stories come from graphomaniacs.

It's debatable whether all writers aren't graphomaniacs, even the brilliant, capable and successful ones. For writers are like other people fundamentally; writing is a business just as much as selling sausages or measuring cloth; and, to succeed, a man has to be more or less of a monomaniac on the subject to which he devotes his time.

The human brain never appears more fathomless and mysterious than when you try to figure out what makes one man select, say, coal for concentrating his efforts on, while others focus burning on ice, oranges, cloth, string, and so on.

There's more to it than the fact that the man thinks he can make money out of the commodity that appeals to him hypnotically.

Observe the Webster definition of "mania": "Violent derangement of mind; specifically, a form of insanity marked by emotional exaltation, acceleration of the flow of ideas, and motor restlessness. Excessive excitement or enthusiasm."

If that definition doesn't blanket the conventional formulas for success in life, what does?

New York, Sept. 18.—Willard Huntington Wright, an author who writes of the latest happenings in New York hasn't been out of his quarters in an uptown hotel for more than a year. He is ill.

Yet, each day he keeps in complete touch with the world that swirls about him. It would seem he would be dependent on numerous friends to supply him with the latest foibles of a fickle New York public. But he isn't.

His only human contacts are bell-boys, waiters, chambermaids and an assistant manager of the hotel in which he lives. He refuses to see all others and is consistently emphatic in his refusals to make new friends.

He is married but his wife and child live in California.

Wright reads every newspaper and practically every important and recognized publication. In this fashion he refreshes his mind with the world's doings.

Although he has not attended a theatre or concert in many months, he is familiar with all current music through a talking machine. He buys and plays all the phonograph records.

Systematically efficient in everything he does, Wright works many hours a day. Just now he is in the midst of a series of talks, two of them deal with highly technical subjects and the third, a mystery story, is being sandwiched between them.

Thirty-Seven Nurses Registered Defense Day

Thirty-six graduate nurses and one practical nurse registered on Defense Day at the local Red Cross headquarters, signifying their willingness to serve for the army or navy during time of war. Twenty-seven had been enrolled in the Red Cross, while nine of the graduate nurses had not. All Red Cross stations throughout the country had been asked by the Bureau of Nurses of American Red Cross, with headquarters at Washington, D. C., to register all nurses in their locality. Applications to join the Red Cross were given fifteen minutes; qualifications for entrance are graduation from a hospital giving three years of training; the nurse must be a registered nurse; the hospital from which she graduates must have daily at least 50 patients; she must have training in the care of men, women and children. Twenty-seven of the nurses registering will accept service anywhere in case of war. Mrs. H. A. Brandes was in charge of the work of enrolling the nurses.

"Wanderer of Wasteland" Is Produced in Natural Colors

The first motion picture to be done entirely in natural colors is the Zane Grey Paramount production, "Wanderer of the Wasteland," which was produced in the original locale described in the book, the deserts of Arizona, by Irvin Willat, Jack Holt, Kathlyn Williams, Noah Berry, and Billy Dove are featured in the principal roles. The picture comes to the Eltinge Friday.

According to Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president in charge of production of Paramount, "Wanderer of the Wasteland" is Zane Grey's favorite story and the most popular of all the books she has given to the American public.

"In this picture we have used the famous Technicolor process—the same process which proved such a sensational success in the Biblical prologue of Cecil B. De Mille's super-production, 'The Ten Commandments.' To achieve the best results we went to considerable expense and trouble so that the coloring of the picture might be as near perfection as it is possible to attain. A special camera staff organized by the Technicolor Company was sent from Boston. This staff took with it into the desert all of the intricate paraphernalia necessary for the photographing of color pictures, the entire production company spending several weeks in camp, as practically all of the picture was photographed in the desert.

"Not only because of the color photography but also because of the dramatic story, which Zane Grey has written, we expect 'Wanderer of the Wasteland' to prove one of the outstanding pictures of the year."

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1873)

STATE AGENCY NEEDED
The capture of part of a gang of bandits in South Dakota and their confession of their long and widespread activities emphasizes the problem of combating crime in these days of rapid transportation. A thief may rob, steal an automobile and be far away before his crime is discovered. The South Dakota bandit gang operated widely, both in North and South Dakota, making long trips in a short time in high-powered cars which they stole. Many stores have been robbed and thousands of dollars worth of goods carted away quickly in automobiles.

The problem of fighting organized banditry in North Dakota has grown to be more than a local problem. Effective work has been done in the organization of vigilance committees, for protection. There has been a decrease in banditry since many towns organized for protection. Not many bandits want to walk into a nest of armed marksmen nor attack well protected strongholds. In the detection of criminals, however, the local committees are handicapped.

Proposal for the establishment of a state force would meet much objection. The necessity for a large, organized force is questionable. The most recent disclosures of bandit activities does, however, emphasize the necessity of a central authority with adequate funds and power to make long and wide searches if bandit gangs are to be broken up.

A CORRECTION
Inadvertently it was stated last evening that four teachers were employed at the Will school to teach seventh and eighth grades. The William Moore school was intended. Those seeking seventh and eighth grade facilities at the Roosevelt have suggested that two of these teachers be transferred to the Roosevelt to teach the seventh and eighth grades which would then give facilities to the Roosevelt, the William Moore and the Richholt as against the board's plan to concentrate seventh and eighth grades at the Will making children from east and west ends of the city walk excessive distances to school.

DANGEROUS
Airplanes at some of the ocean beaches have been flying low over the bathers to throw a scare into them. One woman was severely injured, struck by an anchor or some other object dangling from a rope attached to the plane. It starts us thinking, what a dangerous device the airplane will be in the hands of fools. Autos are bad enough.

When airplanes swarm overhead by the thousands, the garbage and clutter that will shower on our heads will be a fright, unless planes are barred from flying over communities. They could be restricted to "air lanes" or roads, flying traffic cops keeping them there.

FLOWERS
Two flowers, together in a vase, wilt sooner than when kept separately. Flowers like privacy. They express displeasure. They have moods—emotions. Some loathe music—wither and droop near an orchestra. So claims a botanist writing in London Daily Mail. He refers to the more delicate, sensitive blossoms.

Anyone who has studied plant-life is apt to believe that it even has intelligence. If it's ever found that plant-life experiences pain, cutting a field of wheat will ethically be on a par with slaughtering beasts. Referred to Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Plant-life.

Many are worried by the trend of our nation's foreign trade. In July we bought more from other countries than we sold them. Imports exceeded exports by less than $80,000—not much, but it may be the turn of the tide, with the trade balance increasingly against us as time goes by.

On the other hand, the only way we can back the loans to Europe is to take payment in goods—import more than we export. That'll make less work for Americans, with our markets glutted by foreign wares. An industrial readjustment would become necessary to keep skilled and unskilled labor busy.

Thoret, French aviator, remained soaring in the air over nine hours in a glider, drifting around like a sea gull. He had a motor and propeller aboard for emergency, but they were sealed and not used during the gliding.

These little gliders, operated on the principle of a kite, may become "the craze" within a few years. Properly handled, a glider is about as safe as playing football. You'll own a flying machine of some sort before many years.

STAINLESS
The stainless rust-proof steel invented by Ronald Wilds of Sheffield, England, is being tested in Pittsburgh. A cheap steel of this sort would save America alone hundreds of millions of dollars a year that now is lost by rust.

A very dull steel industry, chronically dull, would result. It's the wearing out of things that keeps industry busy. Nearly all human work is for the purpose of replacing the wornout.

DANCING
Dancing is more a matter of the soul than of the feet. claims a speaker at the convention of dance teachers. Many will actually agree with him.

It's difficult to associate dancing with the spiritual. The appeal of the dance is entirely emotional. Is the soul emotional or intellectual?

A dog show held in New York recently was a very snappy affair.

The scientific name for laziness is ergophobia, but even this won't scare the lazy people.

The visit of the Prince of Wales to the United States is a serious matter. The prince did not come here because he wanted to. He had no desire to be stared at, rushed around, fawned upon, and have his time stolen from him by people who wearied him to death. What he wanted was liberty, and time for a little fun. His choice of Will Rogers for a companion is an indication of his actual tastes. But what the prince wants and what the prince gets are widely different things. The prince is not a clown. He is England's man. Until he becomes England's king, he is to be England's ambassador at large to the world. The world has taken to the prince for a number of reasons: partly because he is good-looking and apparently unspoiled, and partly because there is a legend abroad that he is enjoying himself; for the world loves a man who seems to be having a good time.

And then there is the pre-eminence of snobishness. The people between the covers of New York's Social Register are now fighting one another with tooth and claw for the privilege of meeting the prince. And these people are simply representative of the entire country. Great crowds of the plain, simple inhabitants of this plain, simple, democratic country sent up a cheer for the prince when he landed; another great crowd awaited him when he reached Washington. Snobishness is an almost universal emotion, and there are none more snobbish than those who continually rail at it. The British foreign office knows that the British royal family represents the topmost aspiration of all the snobishness in the world.

"The love of ceremony born in the heart of everyone has helped to fix the eyes of the world upon the English court and to make its exclusive circles a world-wide goal," writes Miss Jane Grant in the Saturday Evening Post. "But more important, probably, is the psychological need for some final tribunal for society. Whatever the reasons, the English court is, socially, the world court, and it is the supreme court. Its decisions, carrying with it acceptance by the great, and personal deferences and attentions without limit." And elsewhere Miss Grant declares, "Not a civilized woman alive, be she of either hemisphere, would forego the privilege and experience of curtsying to their majesties."

That statement may be too sweeping, but it's pretty nearly true. The British foreign office knows that. Britain accordingly sends the English court around the world to receive the world's curtsies.

The Prince of Wales is the English court on tour. He draws well in Australia and India and Canada, and thereby strengthens the ties of the mother country with her daughters.

At present the prince is in the United States for a limited engagement, hardly more than a one-night stand. It may be fun for his audience, but it's work for him. If his train should stop at Potomac at 2 a. m., the cheering of the simple, democratic village folk would cost him his night's sleep.

But duty calls. He is in America because the British foreign office intelligently believes that the American people will like England better if its royal heir apparent drops into pass the time of day.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

One day Mrs. Woodchuck came waddling into Nancy, Nick & Company's store and asked if Miss Snip Snap, the fairyman, was there. "Yes, madam," said Nick politely. "Please sit down and I'll call him." So Mrs. Woodchuck sat down, but she kept tapping her foot on the floor, and that showed that she must be pretty much upset about something.

"How do you do, Mrs. Woodchuck," said Mister Snip Snap, coming from the back of the store where he had been making a pair of pink pajamas for Mister Ringtail Coon. "Well, I don't do as you do," said Mrs. Woodchuck crossly. "I don't sell people things that shrink."

"Why, Mrs. Woodchuck," said Mister Snip Snap, "I never did such a thing in my life. I wouldn't do such a thing. You can ask Mrs. Frog and Mrs. Turtle. They ought to know, for their children are always in the water."

"I don't care," said Mrs. Woodchuck. "Wally's new suit has shrunk so that it won't button on him at all. The buttons are about two inches away from the buttonholes."

"That's very queer," said Nancy, "because it did fit him just fine the day you bought it."

"Well, we like our customers to be satisfied," said Mister Snip Snap, "so bring it back. Mrs. Woodchuck, by all means. And if it is tight as you say, I shall be glad to give you a brand-new suit for Wally."

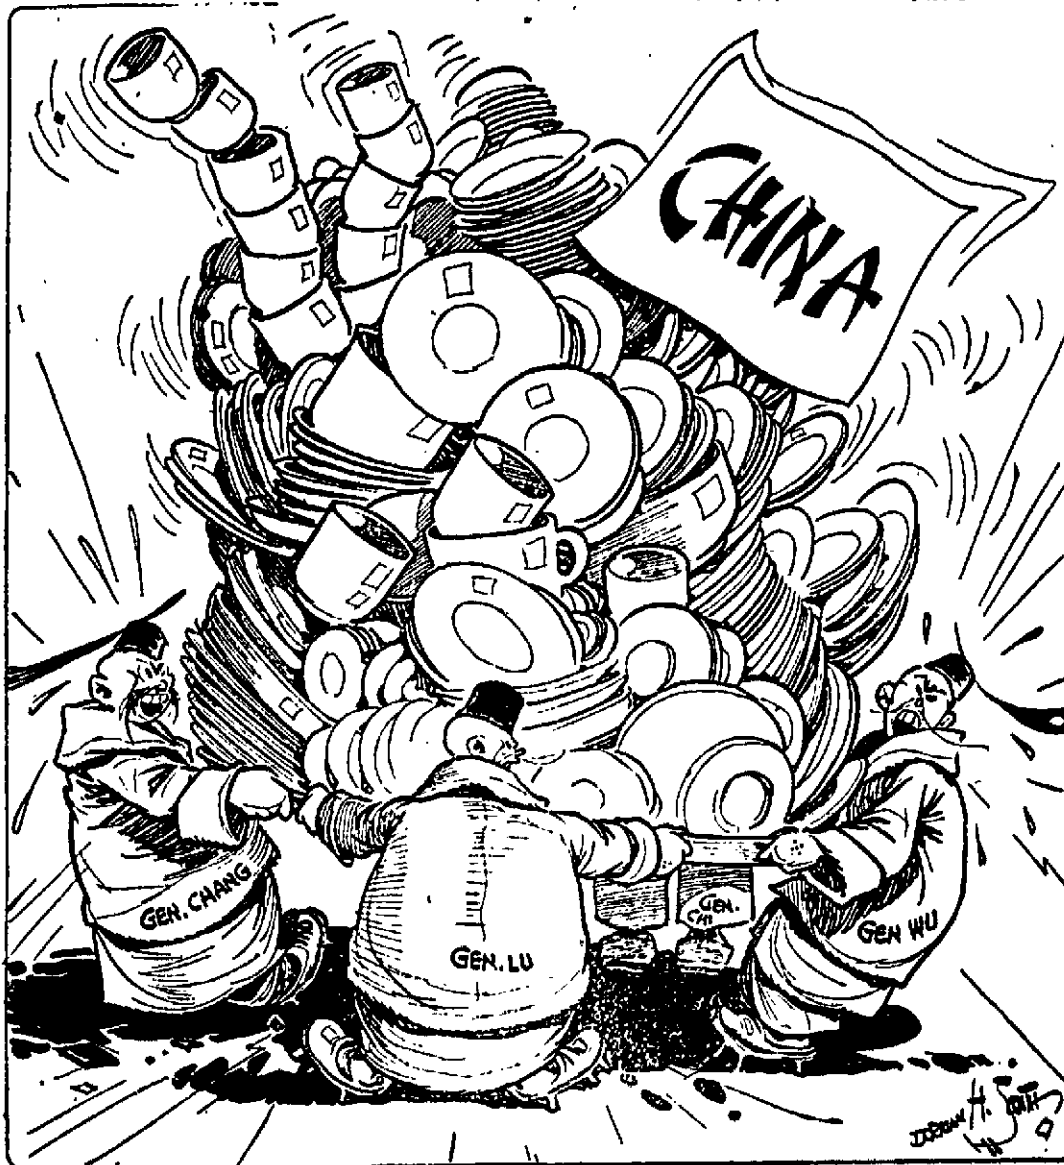

This put Mrs. Woodchuck into a better humor. "That's ever so kind of you, Mister Snip Snap," she beamed. "And I'm much obliged, I'm sure."

Away she went, and by and by back she came with Wally and a bundle.

"Now I'll just show you how much the suit has shrunk, Mister Snip Snap," she said. "Stand up, Wally, and put it on."

Wally put his suit on, and lo and behold, it fitted like a boxing glove.

There'll Be One Grand Smashup if Someone Isn't Careful

Buttoned right up under his chin as smart as you please."

"For pity's sake!" gasped poor Mrs. Woodchuck. "It was all she could say after making such a fuss 'n' all about nothing."

"It seems to be just the right size," said Mister Snip Snap soberly. "I think it looks wonderful," agreed Nancy.

"If you would get a suit any larger than that it wouldn't fit him at all," said Nick.

"I'm very sorry, I'm sure," said Mrs. Woodchuck. "But Wally himself can tell you that after he'd had supper at his grandma's last night it wouldn't button up at all. You must be using magic, Mister Snip Snap, to make it fit so well again."

"No magic at all, Mrs. Woodchuck," said the fairyman. "By the way, Wally, what did you have for supper?"

"Six slices of bread and apple sauce," said Wally, "and six potatoes and four ears of corn and 12 pancakes with molasses and two dumplings and."

"Mrs. Woodchuck," said Mister Snip Snap, "the wonder is that your child is alive at all. If he goes to his grandma's often, you'll have to buy him an extra suit about four sizes too large to wear at those times."

"I think you are right," sighed Mrs. Woodchuck. "I never knew Wally was such a little pig."

LETTER FROM SALLY ATHERTON TO BEATRICE GRIMSHAW SUMMERS

DEAR BEE:

I was so glad to get your letter and know that you are so happy in your new home. Of course you would be happy during your honeymoon. I remember that glorious first few months with Sam, after our marriage, and I never expect to experience such delicious happiness.

At first, to come home from the office and hurry to get some kind of a pickup dinner was a joy, especially as Sam was always hanging around the kitchen making love to me and clumsily trying to help. But after a little I found my poor physical machinery rebelled at the overhours it was made to work. It did not take into any consideration that the extra time was given to a labor of love. Labor was labor to it, and nothing else.

More and more often I got the dinner in paper bags and receptacles from the delicatessen on my way home. More and more often I neglected even to remove the contents of these paper bags to some of my dainty china. More and more often we ate a catch-as-catch-can dinner from these same paper bags, until Sam rebelled at having to get his ham and potato salad and other time-honored dainties of the hurried housewife from the corner grocery.

Then we tried going out for our dinner, but after reaching home we found usually we were too tired to do this. In a little while I was eating my paper bag dinner in solitary state and usually adding to it the salt of my tears, while Sam, on a plea of business, stayed down town until eight o'clock or after, and he usually came home with a liquor-laden breath.

Of course this will never happen to you, Bee, ensconced in your beautiful hilltop home with nothing to do except engage in the delightful time of spending five thousand dollars for beautiful things to make your home more beautiful.

Yes, I know, dear Bee, what I have just written sounds envious and catty, but you know I always was catty, and frequently envious.

I want you to know, however, that I would not take from you one of your blessings. You deserve everything good that can be given to you, and I would have you keep them all your life. I'm just trying to tell you that in whatever environment one is placed, after a time it looks to me as though the secret orchard of somebody else which lies just beyond all ways intrigues one's fancy. That secret orchard usually bears garbled and bitter fruit, but while we are outside of it, the peaches and apples and pears seem luscious.

Like all the rest of the people outside of Hollywood, I am intensely interested in its life, and I am glad I shall know it now from first hand. Some day I may be coming out there for a vacation. You know I have always been more or less of a gypsy, and the California trail has always beckoned.

You ask me to tell you about Leslie. I know really nothing, except that she is staying at her father's home where he is, as you know, quite ill. He is getting better, however.

I am sure that Mr. Prescott and Leslie have had some sort of a quarrel, for no letters have come to the office for Mr. Prescott with her handwriting upon them since she has been away. During the last week, however, he received a telegram from Mrs. Hamilton telling him his father-in-law wanted to see him, and to come and bring the baby.

Mr. Prescott, with the silly stubbornness of a snail, insisted he could not leave his business, but I noticed after receiving a long letter with Mrs. Hamilton's return address upon it, he was much troubled over something.

ONE FORM OF MADNESS

By Albert Apple

A "boy robber," arrested, says he staged a score of hold-ups and robberies to get material for magazine stories he intended to write. His idea was to watch the reactions of human nature confronted by a pistol, then work his observations into fiction.

Unless this lad is kidding the police, he is in earnest. In which event, he appears to have a form of the malady known as graphomania.

Graphomania is a definite and recognized form of insanity. The victim has "the urge to write," just as the kleptomaniac has "the urge to steal."

Unfortunately, the graphomaniac usually turns out nothing but drivel. Still more sadly, he occasionally finds a market for it. In your reading you've encountered some terribly punk stuff, which strikes the fancy of lunatics holding editors' jobs.

Magazines get fiction manuscript by the freight carload. The writing business is extremely overcrowded. Despite this competition, there's always a shortage of "the right stuff." Most of the flood of stories come from graphomaniacs.

It's debatable whether all writers aren't graphomaniacs, even the brilliant, capable and successful ones. For writers are like other people fundamentally; writing is a business just as much as selling sausages or measuring cloth; and, to succeed, a man has to be more or less of a monomaniac on the subject to which he devotes his time.

The human brain never appears more fathomless and mysterious than when you try to figure out what makes one man select, say, coal for concentrating his efforts on, while others focus burning on ice, oranges, cloth, string, and so on.

There's more to it than the fact that the man thinks he can make money out of the commodity that appeals to him hypnotically.

Observe the Webster definition of "mania": "Violent derangement of mind; specifically, a form of insanity marked by emotional exaltation, acceleration of the flow of ideas, and motor restlessness. Excessive excitement or enthusiasm."

If that definition doesn't blanket the conventional formulas for success in life, what does?

New York, Sept. 18.—Willard Huntington Wright, an author who writes of the latest happenings in New York hasn't been out of his quarters in an uptown hotel for more than a year. He is ill.

Yet, each day he keeps in complete touch with the world that swirls about him. It would seem he would be dependent on numerous friends to supply him with the latest foibles of a tickle New York public. But he isn't.

His only human contacts are bell-boys, waiters, chambermaids and an assistant manager of the hotel in which he lives. He refuses to see all others and is consistently emphatic in his refusals to make new friends. He is married but his wife and child live in California.

Wright reads every newspaper and practically every important and recognized publication. In this fashion he refreshes his mind with the world's doings.

Although he has not attended a theatre or concert in many months he is familiar with all current music through a talking machine. He buys and plays all the phonograph records. Systematically efficient in everything he does, Wright works many hours a day. Just now he is in the midst of three novels, I am told. Two of them deal with highly technical subjects and the third, a mystery story, is being sandwiched between them.

Wright was born in California and is described as having a most pleasing personality and enthusiastic outlook.

With Mrs. Hamilton's return address upon it, he was much troubled over something.

CARE OF THE FEET

Mr. Jones was busy buying new socks shortly after his feet began to give him trouble.

The part that stockings play in fixing feet is not generally known. When the feet are unusually tender the toes of the sock should be made of soft yarn and should not be dyed.

If there are blisters, abrasions, sores or tenderness do not wear socks with fancy patterns dyed in them.

Look out for wrinkles in stockings that are too large or too long. Keep the socks clean and change them frequently. Wash them thoroughly and see that they are well dried when used.

Dust the inside of the sock with antiseptic foot powder. Look out for socks that are too short and exert a pressure against the toes. Have them of comfortable fit, permitting of natural expansion when the foot is stepped upon.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Robert Foran, newspaper correspondent, accompanies the Theodore Roosevelt expedition into Africa in 1909. They arrive at Mombasa, the "gateway of British East Africa," and then make the railroad journey to their first camp on the game-crowded Kapiti Plains, 288 miles from the coast. With Colonel Roosevelt are his son, Kermit, and three scientific members of his staff—Major Edgar A. Mearns, Edmund Heller and J. Allen Loring.

Incredible good luck comes to the rifles of Colonel Roosevelt and Kermit during the first two weeks of their sojourn. Then they spend some time at Nairobi, where they are royally received. From Nairobi the party goes to Kiambu to start on their first prolonged safari into the wilds of Africa—the Sotik country.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

The nights in camp were always delightful, for we all gathered round a log-fire after dinner and exchanged experiences of life in the open and expedition, and the horses and mules, four ox-wagons had been requisitioned from Mr. Ulyatt, the Cape Colony farmer whom Colonel Roosevelt had met at the Kijabe mission a couple of days before.

These four ox-wagons, each with a team of sixteen trained animals, were destined to carry 125 gallons of water in tin kegs on each wagon. By this method the enormous expense of engaging a large force of additional porters to carry sufficient water for the needs of the expedition across the "thirst" country would be obviated. And, by a surprising day and night with hardly a stop for two and a half days, the first watercourse could be reached without mishap or lack of drinking water.

Owing to the beautiful moonlight at the time of the month, no real difficulties would be experienced in this night marching. The only real unpleasantness of that journey to the edge of the Sotik country would be the inability to wash, due to the scarcity of water and the discomfort wild places. Cunningham and Tarlton had many a thrilling tale to tell of elephant and lion hunts in the Congo, and East Africa; and the three naturalists shared with us their experiences in Alaska, the Philippines, the Rocky Mountains, Mexico and elsewhere; while Colonel Roosevelt told us many a good story of his adventures on western ranches.

One of his best stories made a great impression on me by its quaint humor.

On his ranch in the west he had a splendid type of man as foreman, whose name was "Hell-Roaring" Bill Jones. It so happened that Jones was the sheriff of the county, and Roosevelt was his deputy sheriff. Jones was quite a local character.

One day Colonel Roosevelt returned to his ranch after a brief visit to New York. On his arrival he asked Hell-Roaring Bill Jones if anything of special note had happened while he had been absent.

"Well," drawled Bill Jones, as he scratched his head thoughtfully, "I guess we've got a lunatic."

"A lunatic?" exclaimed Roosevelt.

"Yes—and the funny thing about that lunatic," continued Bill Jones, with the air of having made a sudden discovery, "is that he's plum crazy."

"Tell me about him," invited Roosevelt.

"It happened this wise. A man got aboard the train and shot the newsboy in the stomach; and when he started in to shoot up the train why the boys just naturally fell on that lunatic, guessing something was wrong with him. They brought that lunatic along to me, and I was plum puzzled what to do with him for we'd never had a lunatic afore."

"What did you do?" asked Roosevelt, much interested.

"I just released all the prisoners out of the jail, and put the lunatic there. Well, you know, Bill Schneider, the big jailer? Well, Schneider used to take that there lunatic out for a walk most every day, and the boys used to gather round and Josh Schneider as to how much start he could give that lunatic; and then catch him. Well, according to the size of the Josh and the bet made, just so much start did Schneider give that lunatic."

"But what if Schneider hadn't caught the lunatic?" demanded Roosevelt.

"Well, I guess I'd just about have whaled hell out of Schneider!" snapped Hell-Roaring Bill Jones.

Roosevelt's stories of real life out west made him a good rival for Bret Harte. But always the talk drifted back to the hunting habits of the wild game in British East Africa.

At dawn on the morning of June 8, the tents of the Roosevelt expedition were struck with the exception of Colonel Roosevelt's. His tent was left pitched until the very last moment, so that he could enjoy reading one of his books from his famous "Pikakin Library." At midday they were to march off to Sotik through the sixty miles of "thirst belt," as the waterless tract of the Kerang Valley is locally called.

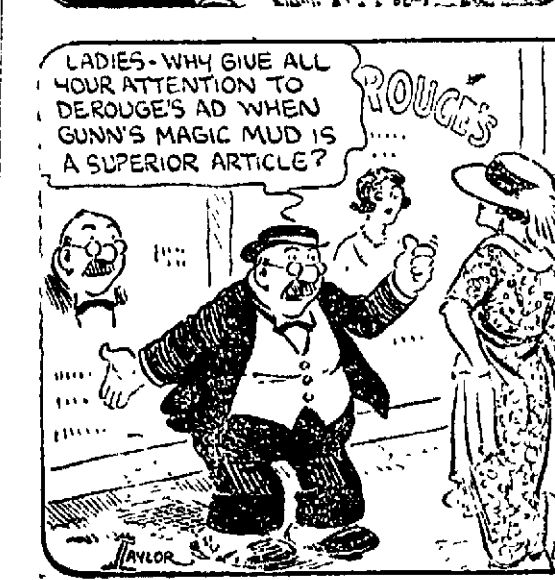

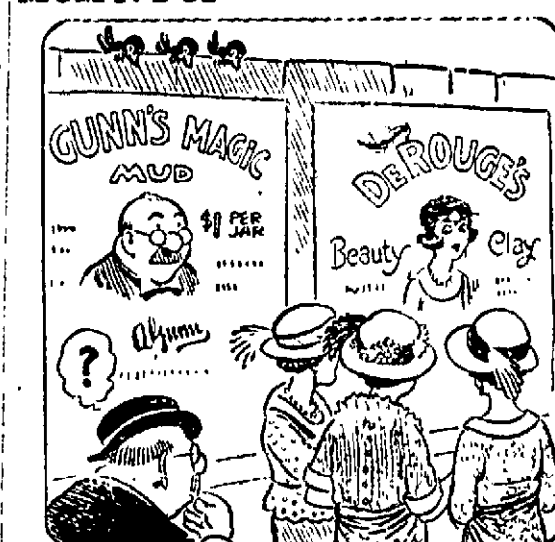

In order to supply the necessary water for the large number of native carriers, the personnel of the

17 STILL ARE ENTOMBED IN SUBLET MINE

No Bodies Removed From Interior of Mine Last Night, But Some Located

22 BODIES REMOVED

Sublet, Wyoming, Sept. 18.—This little mining camp awoke today, the second day since the blast in mine No. 5 of the Kemmerer Coal Company that entombed 51 men, to find that 17 of her citizens still remained within the debris-strewn cavern of sorrow and grief.

The wild grief, so evident in the first few hours after the tragedy which brought to Sublet the first catastrophe in the history of the camp, today had been dispelled slightly and slowly friends and relatives of the stricken families prepared to bury the dead.

No bodies were removed from the interior of the mine during the night, for rescue crews spent the night in rest, the first after more than 30 hours of continuous shifts within the wrecked workings. Their places were taken by fresh air, timber, brattice and clean-up crews, while they gained a few hours of much needed rest. These crews, working feverishly, succeeded in clearing many of the drifts that blocked the passageways and entry ways.

With 22 bodies removed from the mine during the first 24 hours following the explosion and further escape of 12 others, the number of men still remaining in the mine this morning stood at 17.

Of this number, five bodies have been located, all buried beneath wreckage. They will be brought to the surface during the forenoon.

Today the legal technicalities connected with the disaster will get under way, when the county coroner will empanel a jury to determine the cause and fix the blame for the explosion. At the same time, preparations will be started for the holding of the funerals of the victims.

100,000 SAW N. D. EXHIBITS

Shown at County Fairs in Four Different States

A hundred thousand people in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and Illinois have seen five North Dakota county agricultural exhibits, shown at various county fairs, it is estimated by J. M. Devine, Commissioner of Immigration. The exhibits were shown at 26 fairs, five in Minnesota, five in Wisconsin, eight in Illinois and eight in Iowa.

"These county exhibits were all carefully prepared, covering every item of agricultural production, including vegetables and a complete display also of industrial products, as coal, clay, pottery and machinery," said Mr. Devine. "The exhibits were, in each case, artistically arranged and presented a most pleasing appearance. The men who had charge of the exhibits were well fitted to tell, and ably, the truth about North Dakota. At a conservative estimate it is safe to say that 100,000 people saw these exhibits in the states in which they were shown. It was first class advertising. The tents in which the displays were held were crowded every hour in the day and presented North Dakota's agricultural production and great opportunities as nothing else could. It was good seed sown in fertile soil and will go far in telling the story of North Dakota and her far-flung and rich productive land, and the great opportunity she offers to the home seeker in a state of homes and good people."

Mr. Devine has returned from a trip, during which he was present when exhibits were shown. He traveled in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and Illinois.

"I think it is safe to say that both Minnesota and Wisconsin weathered the depressed agricultural period

Many Have Appendicitis

Don't Know It

Much so-called stomach trouble is really chronic appendicitis. This can often be relieved by simple glycerine, buckthorn bark, etc., as mixed in Adlerika. Most medicines act only on lower bowel but Adlerika acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, and removes all gasses and poisons. Brings out matter you never thought was in your system. following the world war more successfully than did Illinois and Iowa," said Mr. Devine. "If my deduction is correct they owe that fact to the value of the dairy cow as a consistent money producer."

Mr. Devine found corn, hogs and beef stock the basic agricultural production of Illinois and Iowa, while dairy and poultry products are the outstanding production features of Wisconsin and Minnesota.

VETERANS OF '61 PASSING

Report of Soldiers Home Shows Many Deaths

Veterans of the days of 1861 to 1865 are passing rapidly, it is shown in the biennial report of the North Dakota Soldiers Home at Lisbon. The attendance at the home, chiefly veterans of the Civil War and widows, declined from 34 on July 1, 1922 to 24 on June 30, 1924. It is expected, however, Commandant R. A. Thomson says, that the attendance will increase. The veterans of the great civil conflict are passing rapidly, but many of those remaining want to spend their last days in the home, he said.

During the two-year period, there were 16 removed from the home by death—13 men and three women. Eleven of the men who died were veterans of the Civil War and two of the Spanish-American War. All of those now in the home are veterans of the Civil War or widows of veterans, except one Spanish-American War veteran.

The home is maintained chiefly from receipts from rentals of lands held by the state for the home. Expenses have been curtailed during the last two years, the Commandant writes and the problems of maintaining the home on the income available is at times difficult, he says.

HERRIOT SAVED AS MOB RUSHES TOWARD PARTY

Police Rescue French Premier From Communists Crowding in Upon Him

Paris, Sept. 18.—Premier Herriot of France narrowly escaped injury in the Marcellin last night when 200 communists, swinging canes and sticks and shouting "amnesty," made a determined effort to surround and mob the premier in the Rue Cannebiere, the main thoroughfare of the southern city, members of the premier's party disclosed today on his arrival here.

M. Herriot was rescued from the excited crowd only after the police, who arrived belatedly on the scene, had forced back the communists and dispersed the gathering.

CASHIER OF BANK SUICIDES

Body Is Found Near Lodi, Wisconsin

Lodi, Wis., Sept. 18.—The body of Ferdinand Markgraf, cashier of the Columbia State bank, was found yesterday in the wood two miles from Dane, with two bullet wounds in the head.

The bullet holes in the skull indicated the man committed suicide, apparently sometime after leaving his wife Monday morning on his way to the bank. The body was brought here for an inquest.

First reports were that Markgraf had disappeared with about $5,000 worth of securities, placed with the bank for safe keeping, but a check yesterday indicated, it is said, the amount is nearer $25,000. Robert Caldwell, president of the bank, said last night that none of the securities had been discovered and that the bank will make restitution. Bank examiners who went over the books of the bank recently said they showed no irregularities.

WORRIES OVER MARS; INSANE

Vienna, Sept. 18.—His mind unbalanced by excessive pondering over the question whether Mars is inhabited, Franz Enterpferer, a mechanic at the Vienna observatory, walked into the street yesterday without clothing and jumped aboard a street car, shouting for a ticket to Mars. He was persuaded that an automobile would get him to his destination in a shorter time and was removed to an insane asylum.
